

Thursday, November 29, 2009

episode #1 about being able to use the internet

Are you afraid of being on the internet? Well don't be, because as long as you you're your personal information. When you're on the internet either chatting with someone through msn or face book, chat rooms or battling against someone on a game you could be unsafe because all it takes is for them to find out a little something about you and boom they can find out so much more. So don't be scared of being on the internet just be aware of your surroundings and have a smart mind.

Don't be afraid of the internet because it's not going to bite ya. If you're scared of the internet I'm here to tell you not to be. The internet isn't always bad, but it can be. For example if you are in a chat room you know it's not safe but you can still be in it and make it safe. Another example is if you're on the internet giving out personal information that you know you shouldn't be giving out than obviously you're not safe.

Battling someone through online gaming seems all fine and dandy until you say or do the wrong thing to the wrong person, than right away they can find out so much about you even with the slightest bit of information. How you act on the internet is completely up to you, it's your decision to give out information or to give out anything about you. When you're gaming don't put your real name because that could cause danger for you. When you're competing with someone don't be mean to them over a game because it might not be someone you actually want to be getting into a fight with. If you're on the internet someone can find out your IP address and could see where the person is talking from.

Msn and Face book are websites to keep in touch with your old friends or distant family, but what people don't know about those sites is that someone could actually find out information by adding you on face book and once you accept that person, you could be putting yourself in a position you just might not want to be in. Msn is also a site to talk to your friends and family, but your friends could tell someone your email and when they add you they could be talking to you about inappropriate things or pretending to be someone their not. Just remember to only add or accept people you know.

The internet isn't all bad it's actually a great place to be on, because it helps you with finding research or keeping in touch with people from all over the world. You can be on multiple websites having fun and being safe but make sure it's somewhere that you know you're going to be safe and that you know what you're doing, just for your safety.

So now you know the dangers of the web and how to stay safe when on it, and remember the internet is all fun and games but just make sure you're on there being safe. So how are you going to be when on the internet?